

Ground Penetrating Radar is a vital tool in accomplishing environmental studies for locating old hazardous waste tanks, archeological site foundations, gravesite surveys and forensic work. These low power units cause no interference to the current radio frequency spectrum. No new regulation is required.